THE MILLS BILL.

VOL. XIX.

Its Author Opens the Debate in the House.

HE IS REPLIED TO BY MR. KEILEY The Probabilities of the Debate-Scenes in the House During the Day-Other

Gossip at the Capital. WASHINGTON, April 17 .- [Special.] -- The tariff debate has opened, and for at least five weeks, with very few days intermission in the house, will be speeches almost without end. More than one hundred names are already on the speaker's list, and additions are being made daily.

Mr. Mills was at his desk when the house convened, and at 1.05 took the floor to make the opening speech of the great fight. On his desk was a cup of hot coffee, which he would sip with apparent relish at intervals. Both the floor and the galleries were well filled. The latter, it might be said, was crowded, and the very strictest of attention was given the Texan by every one present. He spoke for an hour and forty-five minutes, and made about as good an argument as could have been made his side of the question.

on his side of the question.

His delivery was good and every word uttered could be heard in the most distant gallery.

At its conclusion quite a number of the democratic members crowded around to extend their congratulations, but if those democrats who didn't join the congratulatory element may be taken as opponents of the bill, it is safe to say it will not receive the support of the majority of even the democratic side of

Although Mr. Kelley, of Pennsylvania, had asked unanimous consent that Mr. Mills be allowed all the time he desired in delivering his speech, and had listened attentively through, when that gentleman took the floor for a reply, Mr. Mills immediately left the hall and didn't even show that gentleman the courtesy of listening to any part of his remarks.

Mr. Kelley's speech consumed the remainder of the day. It was practically the same speech he had delivered on former occasions in dis-

Judge Crisp says Mr. Mills's speech was splendid effort, and is unanswerable. Mr. Candler says it was a masterly speech, and was the strongest presentation of his side of the case that can be made. In regard to the Mills bill, he says he shall try to amend it in several particulars, but if he can't succeed in getting his amendments adopted, he will then vote for the bill as it stands. He is in favor of a total repeal of the internal revenue system, but if he can't get that he will vote for the Mills bill as the only means left of reducing the surplus.

THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA. The judiciary committee today decided to report favorably on the Grimes bill, to create a new division in the southern judicial district of Georgia, composed of the counties of Mus-cogee, Heard, Troup, Meriwether, Harris, Talbot, Taylor, Marion, Chattahoochee, Stew-art, Schley, Webster, Quitman, Clay, Randolph, Calhoun, Early, Baker, Miller, Deca-tur and Terrell. The bill also provides for courts twice a year at Columbus, in this division. Should this bill pass Mr.

Grimes will have done good work for Columbus this year, having already gotten his public building bill through the house and into the senate, where it will undoubtedly be favorably reported from the committee, and pass. His only fear is that Mr. Cleveland will veto it.

JUDGE STEWART TAKEN ILL During Mr. Mills's speech today, Judge Stewart was suddenly taken ill on the floor of the house with congestion of the stomach. He was assisted to the judiciary committee room, where a doctor was summoned, and as soon as he had sufficiently recovered was carried to his room. The judge is somewhat improved tonight, and says he expects to be out in a few days. He and Philip Joseph were to annear days. He and Philip Joseph were to appear before the appropriation committee tomorrow in the interest of Atlanta's colored exposition, ing Laurens county to construct a bridge over the Oconee river at or near Dublin.

Senator Brown today introduced a petition from Mrs. Mary A. Washington of Macon, asking that her claim for part of Hot Springs. Ark. property be referred to the court of claims.

TAKING UP THE TARIFF BILL.

Mr. Mills's Speech in the House in Favor of Tarlif Reduction.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—In view of the fact that the contest over the tariff-bill is to open in the house today the galleries were unusually well filled when the house was called to order at noon.

in the house today the galleries were unusually weil filled when the house was called to order at noon.

After reports from committees the house went into committee of the whole (Mr. Springer in the chair) for consideration of the tariff bill. No opposition was made to Mr. Mills's motion to this effect.

Every effort, said Mr. Mills, that had been made to bring the war exactions of the government down to a peace establishment had been resisted, step by step, and every effort had been defeated. There had been a tax on railroads, but it was gone. It had not lived long after the war. It had been a tax on wealth. It was said to be oppressive to tax the wealth. There had been a tax on insurance companies. It was gone. There had been a tax on express companies. It was gone. There had been a tax on the been a tax on bank deposits and bank capital. It was gone. Three hundred millions, paid by the wealth of the country, had been swept away, and the burden of taxation had been made heavier as it had been loaded upon the shoulders of those who had to support themselves and the government. Was the tax of three per cent to be paid out of the pockets of manufacturers of blankets, a weight more oppressive than the tax of 79 per cent on incomes more oppressive than the tax of 79 per cent on incomes more oppressive than the tax of 100 per cent on women's and children's dress goods? Yet all these taxes on wealth had gone and the gentlemen of the minority boasted that they had reduced the tax to the amount of 360 million, while the democratic party had reduced it only a bagatelle. That amount of 360 million, while the democratic party had reduced it only a bagatelle. That was the splendid column these gentlemen had erected.

All taxes on wealth had passed away and all burdens cast upon the shoulders of the laboring man. In 1883 taxation had still further been reduced, and this magnificent shaft, which the party then in power had erected to commemorate its legislative wisdom and beneficiency of its laws, was crowned with a capstone taking off the internal revenue tax on playing cards and putting twenty per cent. on Bibles. [Laughter.]

The democratic party had been trying to reduce taxation upon the necessities of life, and

The democratic party had been trying to reduce taxation upon the necessities of life, and was charged by the minority with not accomplished any reduction. That would have been a grave charge if the gentlemen who made it were not guilty of having prevented the democrats from accomplishing the reduction. It did not lie in their mouths to charge the democrats with falling to reduce taxation when they had mustared their whole strength, striking ont mustered their whole strength, striking out the enacting clause of bills presented by democrats. Twice they had accomplished that and twice they had refused even to consider the question of reduction of taxation. But the greatest evil inflicted upon the people by excessive, taxation on the consumers of the the greatest evil inflicted upon the people by excessive taxation on the consumers of the excessive taxation on the consumers of the country was in the destruction of values of exports. The great body of exports were agricultural products. From 75 to 80 per cent of the exports were such products. The war-duties limited importation and that limited exportation. Surplus productions were, therefore, thrown upon the home market. It became over supplied and prices went down. So it was with the people of Europe. Their products were thrown upon their home markets and their prices went down.

In 1880, after the long depression from 1873, prices suddenly rose in Europe, and the result was that as prices rose the tariff went down, and importations increased about $200,000,000 more a year. Exports also increased enormously. But it was insisted that if duties were lower and foreign goods were imported, our people would be turned out of employment and the rates of wages would be reduced. Nothing of the sort would happen. We would import things which we could not produce—things that could be produced cheaper in other seutries than at home. We could now produce less than 90 per cent in other countries than at home. We could now produce loss than 90 per cent of all the manufactures consumed in this country cheaper at home than they could be produced anywhere else in the world and transported here. It was said that a high tariff might raise wages for labor. It was said if the tariff were reduced wages must be reduced. It was said that if the value of the daysettic product was increased reconstitutions. duced. It was said that if the value of the domestic product was increased, manufacturers were enabled to pay higher wages. Unquestionably. But did he do it? No. High tariff did not regulate wages. Wages were regulated by demand and supply and the capacity of the laborer to do his work. If high tariff regulated wages, how was it that wages in different parts of the country were different? How was it that wages in different localities in the same state were different? The rate of wages in the cotton industry were lower in Rhode Island than in Pennsylvania but in iron industry wages were higher in Rhode Island than in Pennsylvania. It was admitted by all that the rate of wages in this country were higher than for Fance or Germanny, and yet Germany and France had protecny, and yet Germany and France had protective tariffs to guard against the free labor of Eugland. What made this high rate of wages in this country? It was coal and steam and machinery. It was these great agents that made labor more valuable, and a high rate of wages meant low cost of production. Fifty years age, it required five persons to make wages meant low cost of production. Fifty years ago it required five persons to make eight yards of cloth in one day. They got twenty cents apiece a day. The labor cost of cloth was 12½ cents a yard. Counting 360 working days in the year, the whole product of these five cheap laborers was 2,460 yards, but when coal and steam and machinery were harnessed together to produce cloth, five persons could produce 140,900 yards a year. The labor cost of cloth was now 1.08 of a cent a year. The wages of labor instead of being 860 a year was 2287. Old wages had to depart before the conquering march of high wages and steam machinery. It was not the rate of wages that came into the market to contest supremacy. It was an article that labor produced and if it could be produced at a lower cost than a rival article, it would labor produced and if it could be produced at a lower cost than a rival article, it would drive that rival out of the market. Increased productive power, a high rate of wages, low cost of production followed each other as the night follows the day. The fact that the rate of wages was higher in this country than in England, meant that England was distanced in the great industrial contest in which the United States had entered. He read from a table compiled by an English gentleman sent over to investigate the cotton industry of the United States to show that in every case the labor cost of cotton goods was lower here than in England.

Mr. Milliken, of Maine—If that is so, what harm does the tariff do?

Mr. Mills—What good does it do? It enables you to make trusts and combinations and pools. [Applause on the democratic side.]

Mr. Mills then proceeded to say that though the labor cost was lower and the rate of wages higher than in England, yet England beat us, because she produced goods at a total cost lower than ours. It was not labor. It was material people and told them to fear nothing. "These people in the United Stotes," he said, "while they beat us in labor; while they can produce anything, hold to a high tariff on raw material. The cost of the material that enters into manufacture is high, and as long as they hold to a high tariff you may go to sleep in security, for England holds the market of the world." In conclusion he said that he hoped that the bill which the committee had presented, which had met with favor throughout the curity, would receive a majority of the votes of the house, though it was not all the committee could ask. It was a very moderate bill, yet it would send comfort and happiness into all the homes and the bosoms of the poor laboring people of this country, and he asked the house, in behalf of these people, to consider their claims and help to reduce the burdens that had been loaded upon them.

and help to reduce the birdens that had been loaded upon them.

Mr. Mills spoke about an hour and three-quarters, and as he took his seat he was surrounded by a crowd of democratic members, who pressed forward to shake his hand and tender their congratulations.

The house, at the instance of Mr. Breckin-ridge of Arkansas, extended to Mr. Kelley the same privilege in the matter of time that had

The house, at the instance of Mr. Breckinridge of Arkansas, extended to Mr. Kelley the same privilege in the matter of time that had been granted Mr. Mills.

Mr. Kelley said that the proposed law putting wool on the free list would abolish sheep husbandry, destroy the finmense capital embarked therein, and impoverish more than a million who own flocks, or are employed in their care, and by working this ruin it would diminish the supply of cheap and healthful clothing to the mining and manufacturing laborers of the country. It would also render the production of American tin plates and cotton, ties impossible by placing these articles on the free list with wool. By the transfer of these and other products of coal and iron ore to the free list and by reducing the duties on steel rails, structural iron and many other forms of iron and steel sufficiently to withdraw protection from them and permit foreign products to flood our markets. It would, though it maintained existing duties on coal and iron ore, close a majority of bituminous coal fields and ore banks which are now giving profitable employment to hundreds of thousands of laborers, not only in the northern states, but in Maryland, Virgrina, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee and Alabama, and turn them adrift without the prospect of other employment elsewhere than in the cotton and corn fields. But while professing to have abandoned their purpose to put coal and iron ore on the free list, its framers had ingeniously contrived to make the importation of both fieby such measures of indirection as might enable them to saddle the treasury department on the Iree list, its framers had ingeniously contrived to make the importation of both fies by such measures of indirection as might enable them to saddle the treasury department or judiciary with the political consequences of their deliberate tergiversations. The junto would not put coal and ore squarely and frankly on the free list. They had, however, as effectually provided for the repeal of duties that now protect them as could have been done by naming them in that list. They were not specially enumerated or provided for, and consequently the repeal of existing duties on these articles was specially provided in lines two and three of section 41, last paragraph of the bill, the language of which is that "all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed."

This language applied and repealed the provisions of the law which now authorize the collection of duties on those "mineral substances in a crude state and metals unwrought," known to commerce as bituminous coal and from ore. It was claimed for the committee's bill that it would open foreign markets to our productions, and in connection with this preposterous claim it might not be inappropriate to say that the corn consumed in the glacose industry, of which little is known to the farmers of the country at large, equalled more than one-third of our total annual export of corn, and is about one-half the quantity consumed by our distilleries, whose interests are protected by the existing tariff and by the monopoly created and vested in the "whisky trust" by internal taxes on distilled spirits; both of which methods of protection a majority of the committee on ways and means seemed to regard as the vested rights of the "trust," which no legislation may repeal or modify.

Mr. Kelley said it would be a mistake to on ways and means seemed to regard as the vested rights of the "trust," which no legislation may repeal or modify.

Mr. Kelley said it would be a mistake to suppose from the drift of his remarks that he was opposed to the reduction of the surplus. He defined his policy in these words:

I ;would so legislate on the question of the surplus and the sources whence it hows as to increase the wealth, power and dignity of the country by promoting—the development of its natural resources and the diversification of indestries and thus diminish its dependence upon foreign importations, upon which duties are collected. I would derive national revenues from customs duties, so adjusted to remunerative prices for commodities to stimulate and defend home productions, while preventing combinations, trusts and monopolies of any kind from burdening consumers by demanding fictitious prices. In pursuance of this policy I wou d promote by adequate duties the growth of jute, rame, flax, hemp and other fibrous plants, and thoir manufacture into thread, cordage and fabries, and would maintain the existing duties on sugar. I would also impose such duties on tin plate as would quicken the mining of tin and invite the location of such smelting works, furnaces, forces and roiling mills for plate sacets in close proximity to the mines mining of tin and invite the location of such smelting works, turnaces, forces and rolling mills for plate sneets in close proximity to the mines as would crown the Black hills of Dakota with industries of which he ration would be proud, and the beneficience of which all its people would feel and appreciate. But these processes of reducing the revenue, though certain, will be gradual, and, as the president has truly said:

'It is the condition which confronts us, not as a theory."

the reveate, though certain, with ogradual, and, as the president has truly said:

'It is the condition which confronts us, not as a theory.'

Reduction should be effected immediately by the abolition of sources of income receipts from which may be computed month by month if not absolutely day by day. The politics of this country are now dominated by a whisky trust as absolutely as they were by slavery be fore the war and king alcohol is proving that he is as hostile to national development as king cott ne ever was.

In conclusion, I submit that it was by the provisions of law indesing taxes on distilled spiris that the "whisky trust" was called into existence and enabled to accomplish the revival of despotism which pervaled the southern states before the war, and that the power of this trust and combinations of democratic politicians and the banking influence of Kentucky can be broken only by a repeal of internal taxes, the perpotutation of which is the issue presented to the American people by the president in his free trade message, and by the five southern gentlemen who have dominated the councilis of the committee of wars and means, and submitted this bill to the house for consideration. For myself I will stand for the protective system and the maintenence of such rates of duties as will insure the development of all resources of the country, increase the number of its industries and perpetuate its national independence, commercial and industrial, as well as political. This cannot be done if the internal tax system is to be maintained, for the surplus is in a condition that cannot perpetuated with safety to our republican institutions. The purity of the government, the safety of business, and the morals of the public demand an abatement of the surplus is in a condition the keaty of business, and the morals of the public demand an abatement of the surplus is in a condition the safety which from seventy-five millions to one hundred million of what should be our current money shall be applied solely to the ou millions to one hundred million of what should be our current money shall be applied solely to the use of the "whisky trust" in is war upon our national indistries, posterity, referring to the surplus and its demonitizing influence, will impute the crime that perpetuated it, and the consequences with which it brought to the fifthieth congress of

In England.

Mr. Milliken, of Maine—If that is so, what harm does the tariff do?

Mr. Mills—What good does it do? It ena study men, who came from all parts of the sturdy men, who came from all parts of the state to take counsel with each other as to how their own condition and that of their suffering fellow citizens might be improved. If he had said a word that could wound the sensibility of any Kentuckian, it has not been used with that intent and he begged the people of this wonderfully endowed state to remember the scripture maxim: "That faithful are the wounds of a friend."

The committee then rose. The house at ttee then rose. The house at It is not expected that debate on the tariff will be continued tomorrow. The day will be given up to the consideration of bills reported by the committee on labor.

seems to have been given out by a hotel por-ter. Colonel Fred Conkling came out of the house and said positively that his father was not dead, but that he could not five tweive hours. This was the first official announcement from the house since the rumor was floated out through the porter.

Drs. Barker and Sands left the sick chamber at 9:35. Dr. Barker denied that Mr. Conkling was dead, but said he was sinking rapidly and would in all probability die before morning. His system is giving way rapidly and he was very weak and he had lost all consciousness. Dr. Barker called at 10:30 o'clock last night and remained until 11 o'clock. He said that Mr. Conkling was failing rapidly. His extremities were becoming cold. His legs were quite cold. He was pulseless. His respiration was very quick. He did not think Mr. Conkling could live much longer. In fact he did not think he would live two hours. He was suffering from general failure of nervous system.

The Conkling family is a talented one. Roscoe's father, Alfred Conkling, was an eminent lawyer, member of congress in 1821-23, judge of the United States district court for the Northern district of New York from 1825 to 1832, and minister to Mexico for a abort form. One son, Frederick A. Before taking his seat the last time he was chosen Uniced States senator, took his seat in the upper house in 1867 and held the place continuously fill 1831. His first prominence in the house of representatives was gamed by his vigorous opposition to the legal tender act, and his unsparing criticism of General McClellan's management of the army. He forced an inquiry into the causes for the disa ter at Ball's Blutt, and his speech on the resolution calling for information from the war department was read with an intense interest by the people. His speech on the legal tender act, in connection with that of Owen Lovejoy, exhausted, the subject on the negative side. On both those subjects he was consistent to the end of decrear and all his supporters. Indeed, he was determined in all his positions, ardent in friendship, releatiess in opposition. His devotion to the military support of General Grant and the political measures of President Garfield in 1810 on a point of political rights directly growing out of the matter. In the combat he fought with relentless fury, and when defeated he went down with colors liying. His opponents often complained that he was cruelly sarcastic; but that he had many attractive personal qualities is conclusively proved by the life long devotion of his friends and supporters.

The consultation of phy siciens this morning is reported to have beginning to prevail. The consultation of physicians this morning is reported to have resulted in an agreement that there is no inflammation of the lungs, and that the bronchitis is abating. In fact, it is said that there is a difference of opinion among the doctors as to whether bronchitis has appeared at all, or whether the fever and difficulty in breathing were not traceable to an abcess in the trachea. that there is no change in their views concerning the spirituality of such as connected with its political deliverance. The resolution them says:

"We cannot consent to the establishment of a separate Afti an Prostyterian church, or to any provisional arrangement looking forward to the organization of a separate Arrican Presbyterian church."

We are willing to consent to an arrangement by which the present boundaries and constituencies of the presbytery and synod in the south shall remain in statu quo; provided; this shall be unconstrained preferences of both parties interested, explicitly expressed by the st veral pre-byteries, and provided it be no bar to future adjustments according to Presbyterian preferences, subject always, as heretofore, to the acts of it e general assembly."

"If there are a sufficient number of ministers and churches to form a colored presbytery in any locality already covered by the synod, such presbytery may be formed if those on the ground desire it, but such presbytery shall remain in the same synod, unless there be a synod of our colored Christian brethren near enough to which the presbytory asks to be attached."

The reading of the preamble and resolution created a profound sonsation. Dr. Gray protested that if such an utterance as that went forth as the deliberate expression of opinion of a body of Christian ministers, a quarter of century after the closing of the war, it would be most infamous and disgraceful.

"It means that we shall go down there with arms and resettle all the old issues with the bloody, nearly forgotten war. The Presbyteries of Florida, Missouri, Kentucky and Tonnessee have already signified a desire to come over to reunion, but not a man of them would come in the face of such an insult as this. The effect can only result in the disintegration of that church."

Rev. Dr. Withrow said: "A powerful body will come to the general assembly asking for reunion. We cannot stand on this proposition. It would sweep us from off our feet. But then, again, if we say we wi Drs. Barker and Sands left the sick chamber system.

At the bedside of the dving man were Mrs. Conkling, Judge Cox, Dr. Anderson, Mrs. Oakham (Mr. Conkling's daughter), and a professional nurse. Mr. Conkling passed away without moving a limb. He looked as though peacefully sleeping. There were a number of persons outside on the street, waiting to catch the last report. Within doors there were between forty and fifty persons, also waiting to hear the worst. They were composed cheifly of representatives of the press and friends of the dead senator.

The meet, taking all circumstances and conditions into consideratian, was highly successful in itself; although the attendance was far less than it should have been. The wheel-men were all in fair trim, considering the fact that there were three severe headers taken on Monday afternoon. Mr. Chalfant who, it was feared, was seriously hurt by his unformate fall, was on hand and, although saffering from a very lame shoulder, made some of the mest exciting sport of the day by his superb

These positions were maintained without variation until the first half had been nearly completed, when Chalfant made one of those brilliant spurts which have characterized his riding during the two days' races. He was closely followed by Reed, who rode in splendid form, while Goldsmith took up the third place and Brown finding his machine working unsatisfactorily, dropped out altoworking unsatisfactorily, dropped out alto-together. This exciting heat ended two days of as pretty and exciting sport as was ever witnessed in Atlania. The event was an important one and it is hoped marks the beginning of a new era in the sporting history of Atlanta in which the manly pasttime will take a fitting place. "All the broweries have resumed work, and I have just received word from Keeley's that they have all the men they want and good wen, too."

Last night a meeting of the visiting and local wheelman was held at the Markham house. Most of the visitors left later in the evening for their homes.

The accident occurred about six miles from Atlanta at a point where the Western and Atlantic and the Georgia Pacific run parallel and close together. On each road a freight train was coming in, the Western and Atlantic engine being about four car lengths ahead of the Georgia Pacific. A young white man, whose name was subsequently learned to be Charles Green, was noticed walking toward town on the Georgia Pacific track, and as the Western and Atlantic train passed him, the engineer, Mr. Andy Anderson, shouted to him to "look out" for the train behind him. The young man seemed not to understand him, and kept straight on while the Georgia Pacific freight was steadily gaining on him. Georgia Pacific freight was steadily gaining on him.

He was struck squarely by the engine and thrown upward, falling head foremost to one side of the track. The train stopped to pick him up. The young man was pretty badly bruised and seemed to be in great pain. He was brought in and carried to the Iry street hospital where Dr. Roy, the road physician, made an examination. He says that no bones are broken and that the external bruises are not necessarily serious. The only danger is from internal injuries, and late last night he was resting quietly. Mr. Green has been employed at Mr. P. L. Johnson's dairy farm near the city, but left that position day before yesterday. The news was carried to his wife at that place last night and she is expected here this morning.

Whose Name Has Became Familiar Throughout the State.

The Heroine of the Covington and Maco Road-The Story of a Curious Combination of Circumstances.

Who is Mrs. Gould?

People who have been reading of the progress of the Covington and Macon railroad, lately become familiar with the name of Mrs. Gould, and the question of why she should b often mentioned has been frequently asked. Thereby hangs a tale.

Colonel E. C. Machen, a gallant young Ken tuckian, several years ago, became interested in the railroad possibilities of Georgia. He undertook the construction of the Covington and Macon road. Difficulties overcame him, and rivals rendered his pathway thorny. Disheartened he left the state, and for about a year he was not heard from.

A few months ago Macon was astonished a the presence of the familiar form of Colonel Machen. He walked around with the air of a man who walked on solid earth. He was accompanied by Alexander Brown, of Baltimore, a wealthy capitalist. It soon became known that the Covington and Macon was on its feet, and that Colonel Machen had at his command unlimited capital, and that he was in a position to push his pet scheme to completion, did he come by his good luck?

In New York city there lived a lady-Mrs. Gould—who had been a friend of Colonel Ma-chen's father, and thus had an interest in the welfare of the son. Mrs. Gould was a widow, Immensely wealthy, and with a good idea of She heard all about Colonel Machen's plans, and sympathized with his ambi When the proper time came she offered him not only her sympathy, but her business assistance, which is understood to have been a cash subscription of $100,000. This evidence of faith brought other capitalists to Colonel Machen's side, and to this fact is due the rapid completion of Georgia's newest railroad.

Mrs. Gould for several months has been staying at the Hotel Lanier, in Macon. She is a lady under middle age, charming in manners and of attractive appearance, thoroughly womanly and alive to every feminine instinct. She is accompanied by her daughter, a young lady of sixteen, whose presence has been much sought in Macon society.

The strangest, thing connected with Mrs. Gould is her fascination for railroad work. She went out once to see the work of construction, and became so enthused with it that she has kept up with the pioneer force all the way through. She could be seen walking ng the workmen, inspecting the progress of labor, and whenever any difficult part was to be accomplished, she would always be on hand. She had at her command a construction engine, with which she would pass up and down the road. She has been known to order it out at night, when she would go out and watch the gangs as they worked by torch-

It was thus that Mrs. Gould became the cer ter of attraction Saturday evening, when the last spike was driven which completed the line between Macon and Madison. She was entertained by the best citizens of Madison, and returned to Macon delighted with her ex-

The Savannah floral and art show is in pro gress. Albany's floral exhibition will be opened by a speech from Governor Gordon on the second of May.

The season is still having its effect upon the editors. The Sparta Ishmaelite observes that "we have plenty English pea blooms." The Americus Recorder: "The mockieg birds were-holding a carnival of song yesterday. Coy spring no longer flirts with cold winter, she is mistress of the situation." The Waycross Reporter: "The trees are in bloom, the lovely flowers are peeping forth, and the festive mosquito is presenting his bill." The Albany News: "Departing winter flapped his wings once more, and yesterday morning the cool north wind brought a suggestion of frost, as the discarded coverlids were wrapped closer about the form. We think it was the dying effort, for the icy-hearted frost king has been pierced through by the bright darts of the April sun." Leary Courier: "There never was a more perfect spring day than last Sun-day proved. The rain of the evening previous refreshed all nature, and when the sunshine broke upon the Sabbath morn it set millions of rain drops left upon the tree to glittering like so many diamonds, the fragrance of flowers filled the air, the birds sang and the wind blew as soft as the breath of anwels. It was just such a day as is calculated to arouse all the sentiment in a person's nature, and for once we felt in sympathy and ready to excuse every poet who had ever warbled of spring. P. S.—We have settled back into our old time aversion to the spring poet."

The Smithville News has this: The following appalling picture of the blight of free whisky, is taken from Senator Colquit's speech:

"A distillery upon every spring branch, a peck of corn bartered for a quart of whisky, a jug of the devil's swill in' every cabin will convert every neighborhood into a pandemonium, and expose to danger the purity of every Christian household.

Families would fly into the towns and cities and abandon the country to the orgies of sensual, drunken, debauched wretches."

This is truly terrible, but it seems to us that the states could control this possible state of affairs, as now the government controls it.

He was a native of North Carolina, and by the people of that state regarded as one of the ablest men ever produced in that commonwealth. During the war between the states, when the southern board could send their missionaries in China no funds, Dr. Yates secured a civil appointment under the Chinese government, and with this salary sustained the mission work and its missionaries. Many other noble sacrifices of this kind were brought out by the speakers.

The state of affairs in Griffin is not good and loud complaints are made of the administra-tion of justice. A writer to The Constitu-

A short time since, Officer Paletharp spotted a negro down on Bridge Row that fitted the discription of one of them, and kept his eye on him until today, when he became satisfied that he was one of the parties wanted. Macon, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—The Illinois sand stone, which was so extensively used in the construction of Macon's new government building, began to reveal a disagreeable discoloration. The source of this was attributed to thefact that 'the mortar used in brick well behind the stone had never became dry, owing to so many rains that had prevailed at the time of its erection, and that the moisture still clung around them. But as no change to their appearance was noticed when the roof was placed on, it was the occasion of much comment. Sand From Jerusalem.

Athens, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]--Mr. Moses Meyers has received a novel gift from over the seas. The gift consisted of about six ounces of white sand in a linen bag, and was sent all the way from Palestine. Mr. Meyers says, however, that Clark county clay will serve all his purposes when his head gets cold.

The Albany Dress Makers Rushed.

ALBANY, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—The Albany dress makers say that they are crowded with work this spring, and have in fact more than they can do. "I have never seen such a rush before," said a prominent one of that industrious guild. "Why, this is the first time I have been able to leave the house in five weeks. Yes, I suppose this quantity of new dresses must be an index of increased prosperity among the people here. My patrons never haggle on the price, nor do they try to Jew me down, and they all pay cash for the work."

Reducing Fire Risks. Augusta, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—Stamp clerk, James L. Robertson, of the Georgia compact has received notice from General Manager Dean that the Southeastern Tariff Association had reduced insurance rates on business fisks in Augusta fifteen per cent.. to go into effect April 16. This is in recognition of the efficiency of Augusta's paid fire department, and puts the rate in Augusta as low as in any city in the state. Residence risks were similarly reduced several months ago.

A New Hotel Wanted. A New Hotel Wanted.

Marietta, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—Our hotels and boarding houses are filled to overflowing with northern people. The cry is heard on all sides, "We need a 200 room hotel." The scarcity of residences to rent is another cry. A good large number could readily be rented if built at once. Quite a number of capitalists were in the city last week and some real estate transfers were made.

To Hear Rev, Mr. Keese Preach His First To Hear Rev, Mr. Keese Preach His First Sermon.

Fort Gaines, Ga., April 17.—[Special.]—
Last Sunday the Baptist church at the 11 o'clock service was crowded to its utmost capacity, the occasion being the first sermon, at this place, of Professor E. H. Keese, of Springvale, who has recently been ordained a minister. Professor Keese has spent many years in our town as teacher and editor and there was a general desire to hear him. Some doubtless were attracted by mere curiosity, but many of his old friends and associatas were present to encourage and bid him God sped in his high calling. For a text he selected Peter's declaration, "For we have not followed cunningly devised fables," making a modest but touching appeal for sympathy and support in his emborrassing position. He immediately began a critical analysis of the subject and in a logical and forcible manner demonstrated that logical and forcible manner demonstrated that the religion of the Bible was the hope of the world, for present and future happiness.

The sermon abounded in beautiful figures and apt illustrations and the peroration was simply sublime.

Rev. E. A. Keese will soon be justly ranked with the first ministers in his denomination.

A Negro Shot and Killed by a Widow Woman's Son.

REYNOLDS, Ga.. April 17.—[Special.]—
Henry Marshall, colored, was found dead in a field belonging to Mrs. C. B. Wiggins, near this town. He had been shot in the head with this town. He had been shot in the head with a shotgun by some unknown party. The jury summoned by the coroner were unable to arrive at any definite conclusions until yesterday, and with the best evidence in hand the decision was that the death of deceased was caused by a shotgun in the hands of Mr. Ben C. Wiggins, a son of Mrs. C. B. Wiggins. It was ascertained that Mr. Wiggins and the negro had a difficulty on the same day of the murder, during which the latter had used some very insolent language. Mr. Wiggins has left for parts unknown. The affair is deeply deplored by the community, as the family were of the highest respectability, and young Wiggins numbered his friends by the score.

A GREAT MAN'S WEAKNESS. The Same That Most Men and Women Have -What the Highest Known Authority Says Upon the Subject.

Napoleon the Great never feared an enemy, but he was an abject coward whenever the mucou lining of his intestines pained him. And well he might be, for no spot in the human body is so sensi tive, so capable of agony, and so great a source of dangerous disease as the bowels. The celebrated Dr. B. Hofmeister recently read a paper before the Medical Society of London in which he substantially said: "The unnatural motions of the stomach causing pressure and belchings, the irritations of the intering requiring to a proper statement of the belocker."

tally said: "The unnatural motions of the stomach causing pressure and belchings, the irritations of the intestines resulting in catarrh of the bowels, and the inflamed mucous membranes are the most fruitful of all known causes of disease. Out of them grow most kidney and liver troubles, diabetes, all rheumatic affections and gout. I have found that the unnatural motions of the stomach cease, the intestinal troubles become soothed, and health results from a careful and constant use of Carlsbad Water. The diuretic effects of this water, its quiet action upon the lining of the stomach, and its healing power upon the inflamed lintestines are beyond all praise."

Carlsbad Water is used by the crowned heads of Europe, the leading men and women of the world, by hundreds of thousands who cannot live without it, and it has been used for MORE THAN 500 YEARS. The springs are owned by the City of Carlsbad. The water is bottled only by them and exported only to the Eismer & Mendelson Company, of Barclay street, New York. It is nature's remedy for stomach and bowel troubles, for rheumatism and gout, is sold by all dealers, and it has the unqualified indorsement of five centuries.

Messrs. Stevens & Bruner, Monroe, N. C.
Dear Sirs: About two months ago, on your recommendation, I bought a bottle of Cutteura Resolvent, one box Cutteura Salve, and one cake of Cutteura Solve, for my son, aged thirteen years, who has been afflicted with eczena for a long t me, and I am pieased to say that I believe the remedies have cured him. Itis sufferings were intense, his head being nearly raw, his ears being gone except the gristle, and his body was covered with so es, Ilis condition was frightful to behold. The sores have now all disappeared, his skiu is healthy, eyes bright, cheerful in disposition, and is working every day. My neighbors are witnesses to this remarkable cure, and the doubting ones are requested to call or write me, or any of my neighbors.

A Visit to the Electric Shaft.

From the Southern Medical Record. On the 16th ultimo, the editors of this jour-nal visited, in company with a large number of physicians and others, the famous Electric Shaft, in the county of Taliaferro, near the Georgia railroad, about sixty-five miles above

Augusta.

The proprietors evinced their faith and confidence in the great health restoring properties attributed to this shaft by inviting a large number of medical men, embracing a number of chemists, professors and experts in the medical profession, to examine the locality, to pro-nounce upon the virtues of the shaft, and say whether or not its healing properties are due to electricity or other causes.

On arriving at Hillman, our party was met by a number of carriages and carried to a large, airy and comfortable hotel, situated upon a high hill, overlooking a wide extent of country and presenting a grand and magnificent

The hotel and entire property, we learn, is now in charge of a chartered company, known as the "Georgia Electric Mound Improvement Co." The hotel is well constructed and well furnished with all modern conveniences; the dining room is capacious, the fare good, the proprietors attentive and courteous, sparing no pains to make their guests comfortable.

The surroundings of the Health Resort are certainly fine, and are truthfully described in the following sketch handed us by the pro-

"The high rolling country, the stately forests, the abundant supply of pure spring water, the absence of swamps or ponds, the red clay soil, the dry and bracing character of the atmosphere, all indicate its freeness from ma-larial influence, and suggest its great advantages as a resort for pulmonary invalids.

The "Electric Shaft" is a large excavation about 12x50 feet, dug to the depth of about 14 feet in the north side of a large hill. The perpendicular wall on the south side of the shaft s composed of a brownish colored rock containg alum and iron, and perhaps other minerals. In this the electric property is said to exist. The excavation is divided into three compartments, furnished with comfortable seats. Mineral water is brought into these rooms from ithout by means of pipes. It has a chalybe ate taste and is, we doubt not, a valuable wa-

While we and others of our crowd could not detect any electric influence, there were some who claimed to feel it perfectly-and there were but few of the ladies who did not feel the influence. It was described by one intelli-gent lady who had been visiting it daily for some time, and had greatly improved in health, as coming in wave-like impulses.

We have to confess our inability to say whether or not the influence claimed for this shaft is due to electricity or to other causes or forces. That many remarkable cures have re-sulted at this Health Resort there is abundant evidence in the testimony of many indivalids who have found benefit by visiting the shaft

It is certainly a good place to pass the time agreeably and pleasantly, and we hesitate not to recommend to any who are in search of re-creation or health to visit the Electrict Health Rosort.

MR. B. F. BROWN: Dear Sir-This certifies Mr. B. F. Brown: Dear Sir—This certifies that during last May I was stricken with severe nervous prostration, was confined to my room for three months, and to my bed for the greater part of the time. About the 20th of August I went to the "Hillman Shaft" (Electric Resort,) and after spending four days there found that I was completely cured, and have been entirely well ever since then. The cure in my case was a great wonder to me and my friends, and I am a strong believer in the virtues of the place. (Signed) Mrs. J. K. Durst, January 23, 1888. Greenwood, S. C.

The Electric Rooms.

The Electric Rooms.

The Electric Rooms (or Shaft) are three compartments in an excavation fifty feet long, twelve feet wide, and from eight to fourteen feet deep, made in the side of the hill known as the "Electric Mound." The Southern wall of the excavation is composed of an Alum Rock, extending the full length of the compartments. In this Rock the Electric Property resides.

The whole is enclosed by a neat frame building, provided with a pleasant sitting com, thus affording the patient comfortable protection egainst inclement weather.

Treatment.

The treating of patients consists of sitting in the Electric Rooms two or three hours daily, getting the benefit of the Electric Currents and drinking freely of the Electrified Water.

MUSICAL DIRECTOR.—MR. P. S. GILMORE. The peculiar purifying and building up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla make it the very best medicine to take at this season.

Bessie Bulkley's Sad Fate, From the New York Telephone. It is to be hoped that parents all over the untry will take to heart the pathetic moral told in the suicide of pretty Bessie Hillyer-Bulkley. She was young, naturally ardent, perhaps unnaturally sentimental—but that was all.

She committed the unpardonable offense of overlooking the fact that her father, Judge Hillyer, was several times a millionaire, and fell deliberately in love with a young bank clerk at Washington, and married him in haste one day at Baltimore. He married him in haste one day at Baltimore. He never had committed any crime beyond being the son of a professional gentleman who was "reputably

From that time the young girl's life was one ever-lasting torment of parental persecution and cold-ness, and she felt the roses of love turn to askes in her grasp. Now she is dead. Her sensitive heart was crushed by inhuman tyranny, miserably dis-guised as "regard for her best interests," and poison was the only means of relief.

Between the giddy young girls who do the right thing at the wrone, time against parental wishes.

thing at the wrong time against parental wishes, and the wives who secure lives of misery in spite of themost rigid observance of all the matrimonial pro-prieties, there seems to be a chasm which no human ingenul y can span.

Mr. C. H. Ocdamer is a Very Lucky Man. Mr. C. H. Oedamer is a Very Lucky Man.

Mr. Oedamer was in his cigar factory, No1532 Main street. To questions from the News man he said: "Yes, I drew $5,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery last Tuesday, and I have been paid every cent of the money. I got ticket 60,675, which I sealed up in an envelope and thought no more about it until I read a list of the lucky numbers in the Dallas News. I then examined my ticket and found that I was the fortunate man." The lucky man is a young unmarried German, and lives with his mother and sisters, the latter being interested with him in the prize.—Dallas, Texas, News,

THE ONLY DRIDNIK FOR YSPEPTICS 6 Suburban Farm and Home Lots 6 AT AUCTION

Wednesday, April 18, 3:30 p. m.

IT REPRESENTS THE CHOICEST 36 ACRES OF "ORMEWOOD."

21/2 miles from the Kimball House, and a half a mile from Grant Park. The whole tract is nearly level; 18 acres are in a beautiful grove of oak and hickory, and 18 acres are entirely freed from stumps and thickly sodded with orchard grass and clover. There are six divisions of from TWO to SEVEN ACRES EACH, and each has a front on two roads.

The plat shows which has woods and which of the lots has clover and grass on it. Nos. 3 and 4 have fine free stone springs. All the clover land is in a high state of cultivation. The timber land, Nos. 1, 5 and 6, has a number of very beautiful building sites; hence, if any one desires to secure a choice little place of a few acres convenient to the city, and with many advantages, this sale gives a rare opportunity. Be sure to drive out and inspect this property before the sale, and be ready to go in the free conveyances from our office next Wednesday, April 18th, at 2:30 to 3 p. m.

There are three pretty drives to the property: One out Decatur street, through Reynoldstown along the Flat Shoals road by John Faith's, leaving this road to the left about McPherson avenue, thence directly south by county line road to the property. Another way is out East Fair street, by the City Stockade and W. C. Saunder's pretty suburban place; and the other out Fair to Hill street to the Grant Park, thence through the park directly east by "Little Switzerland" to the property about a half mile.

An experience of 25 years in experimental an-alysis, together with the valuable aid extended by the Academy of Medicine in Paris, has ena-bled M. Laroche to extract the entire properties of Peruvian Bark (a result not before obtained), and to concentrate them in an elixir, which pos-sesses in the highest degree its restorative and invigorating qualities, free from the disagreeable bitterness of ordinary preparations.
This wonderful invigorating tonle is powerful in its effect, is easily administered, assimilates thoroughly and quickly with the gastric juices, without deranging the action of the stomach.

The great Medical Journal of England, the London Lancer, says: "It is an agreeable, and doubtless highly efficacious remedy."

J. J. Flynn, General Eastern Agent, Park Row, New York City. ATLANTA, GA., APRIL 18, 1888.

The Third Party Movement. For the first time since the war the state of Georgia has three distinct political organizations contending for supremacy.

Two of these parties have been in the ring ever since the war, but the democrats long ago knocked about the last spark of life out of the republicans, so virtually there has been for many years, but one political organization in the state. For eighteen years it has been all ups with the democracy. and downs with the republicans, and the latter party long ago concluded, very wisely, to leave untouched the gauntlet thrown by its opponent. So complete has been the victory of the democracy, and so united have the good people of the state been in its support, that it has been left, without contest to control the affairs of the state.

If we understand aright notice is served that it must hereafter fight for what it gets, and it is not the republican party, but the national prohibition party, that steps forward and calls a halt in the onward march of the Georgia democracy. The Rev. Sam Small leads the movement for a third party. and has already begun what he says will be an everlasting campaign.

The question now is, what is the democracy of the state to do?

It cannot be denied that there are many thousands of earnest and active prohibitionists in the ranks of the democratic party in this state, but whether or not any noticeble element of them will desert the party to join the newly organized move to establish the national prohibition party in the state, remains to be seen. The earnestness with which Mr. Small has begun the fight, promises that it will become more interesting as it progresses. The people of every county will be asked to forsake party alliances and join the new party, as being the only one by which prohibition can be reached.

We predict that the effort to break down the democracy will not thrive in Georgia. The democratic party in this state will not allow itself to become dismembered, but on the other hand will strengthen with opposi-

However, the war has begun.

Wny should the republican organs be making such a desperate fight against Governor Hill, of New York? Is he esteemed to be a dangerous man?

Democratic Success.

The Philadelphia Press, commenting on the speech recently delivered in that city by Major J. F. Hanson, of Macon, is inclined to take a somewhat sober view of the situation in the south.

As a matter of fact, the party which the Press represents dug its own grave in the south by its preposterous reconstruction policy. Instead of treating the people of this section with the magnanimity that has since been manifested by a great many northern men, it attempted, after much discussion and with due deliberation, to set up negro governments in the southern states, and made itself responsible for all the oppression that ensued.

This was very bad politics, indeed, as the sequel showed, for the negro governments are things of the past and the white people of the south are solidly opposed to republican rule. Not content with this, the republican party, for nearly a quarter of a century, has been the party of sectionalism. It has beat the drums and tooted the horns to call a "loyal" north to vote against a "disloyal" south; it has waved the bloody shirt, and it has continued to canonize every politician, large or small, who has to say to the discredit of the south.

And now, after all this experience, the Press seems to think that the south is ready to divide on the tariff question. Bosh! The south will be solid against the republican party as long as the republican party exists. It is a party that represents sectional strife and rancor and every degree of meanness, and it can never hope to make any headway among the people who have been the victims of its prejudice. When it comes to a choice between the two parties In this section, the tariff question and the surplus don't amount to a snap of the fin-

The great issue is the necessity for democratic success.

WAGES in this country are double what they are in free trade England. This applies to every kind of labor. Our farmers are infinitely better off than the British farmers.

Revolutionary Countrymen.

It is not yet clearly known on this side of the water why the peasants of Roumania have suddenly raised the standard of revolt. The grievances of the insurrectionists are probably of a serious character, as our cable advices inform us that the uprising has resulted in the killing of several village may ors, and the cutting of the telegraph wires threatened advance upon Bucharest shows the strength of the movement, be cause the city contains a population of 250, 000, and is amply able to defend itself un der ordinary circumstances. The fact that the territor al troops, a body of local militia, have proved inadequate to the emergency is Very rarely have the peasants, or th country people, in any quarter of the globe inaugurated and conducted a formidable revolution, but it is on record that when they once get started they never fail to make a desperate fight against their ene mies. Speaking of the proverbial reputation of the country people for peace, General Toombs once remarked that it was all a mistake, and that every few years in France the countymen sacked the towns and cities and overturned the government. The general perhaps put the matter in too lurid a light, but it must be admitted that in some countries farmers have at times given their rulers a lesson that was written in letters of blood In the middle of the fourteenth cer

Jacques Bonhomme headed an insurrection of peasants in France. Smarting under the high taxes and the insolence of the nobles the farmers burned over 200 castles and captured many towns. So great was the terror inspired by them that the duchess of Orleans and 300 highborn ladies fled to Meanx for shelter. Fully 100,000 men took part in this uprising, and although it was finally suppressed, it was at the loss of much blood and money, and not until the government had been shaken to its foundation. About thirty years later there was a similar outbreak in England, headed by Wat Tyler and Jack Strow. The farmer and their field hands armed themselves with pitchforks and clubs, and swept over the and like a whirlwind. They even bulldozed the king into promising them anything they demanded. After they had murdered severa prominent officials, Wat Tyler was killed dispersed the rebels. It is not likely that the Roumanian peas ants will be able to carry on a protracted warfare. Some of the neighboring countries will, if necessary, march their armies to the scene of action and restore order without bothering themselves about the questions involved in the disturbance. Still, this affair, with some of the sidelights of history thrown upon it, shows that even in this age of peace it will not do for the ruling classes in any land to give the country people just cause to appeal to the sword. It has been proved time and again that the brawny hand of the husbandman can pull the trigger and wield a sabre with deadly effect even against the best soldiers of the world and the king placed himself at the head of his troops and the citizens of London, and

THE country will not stand many more deadlocks on questions that do not concern the rights and liberties of the people. When Mr. Randall interposed his patriotism and his parliamentary knowledge between the people of the south and the force bill, his action was entirely justifiable, but it is questionable whether the minority in a parliamentary body have the right to stop the wheels of legislation in matters of ordinary concern. Let the majority have its way and be held responsible therefor.

Sam Small and Sam Jones Bitterly Attack the Party.

Striking Points of Some Striking Discours -A Big Crowd Present to Give the New Party a Send Off.

The third party movement has been officially

And it has been started with a boom. Rev. Sam Small has figured in a number different sensations during his somewhat checkered career, but the one last night was probably the most important of all.

The details of this third party movemen have been made known to the public, and the fact that it would be inaugurated by Sam Small as "national organizer for Georgia" had a tendency to draw a big crowd. He always

Last night's audience was a rousing big on There were prohibitionists of all shades of be-lief, and many ladies were present. Then there were "antis," who were there for curi-osity, but, taken all in all, the audience was worthy of Sam Small and Sam Jones. They expected something of a startling na-ure, and they were not disappointed. On the stage were seated Rev. S Small, Professor Scomp, of Oxford, Mr. Philip Dodd, Bishop Turner, of the African Meth dist church Dr. J. O. Perkins, Mr. G. K. Woodward, of the Working World, Professor H. M. Sessions, of the Atlanta university, Rev. M. E. Abbey, Rev. William B. Smith Mr. W. S. Stevens, Rev. G. C. Graves, and others.

After a few inspiring pieces by the Atlanta Artillery band Dr. J. O. Perkins advanced to the footlights and said:

"As the secretary and ex-officio chairman of the national prohibition party in Georgia, I have the honor to call this meeting to order. Those who wish to join this party are invited to sign the cards which are now being distributed through the audience and hand them to the committee at the door."

On one side of these cards were the words:

We contend for:

And on the other side of these cards was written:

"If you agree with us and are ready and willing to co-operate for the accomplishment of these propositions please sign below:

Then after an earnest prayer by the Rev.
Mr. Graves, Dr. Perkins said: "I have the honor to introduce to you a man who really needs no introduction to this audience—the Rev. Sam Small."

Mr. Small stepped to the front, and was received with continued cheering by the grea ceived with continued cheering by the great audience. It is impossible to give in detail the masterly speech which he delivered. It was certainly one of the most brilliant exhibitions of stump oratory ever heard in Atlanta— abounding in wit, humor, eloquence, logic and invective. It held the closest attention of the audience for nearly two hours, and was fre-quently interrupted by laughter and appliance.

audience for nearly two hours, and was frequently interrupted by laughter and applause. Its effect was unmistakable.

"My position tonight needs no apology. To you who know the lamentable feature of my career in Atlanta for a dozen years it is not necessary to rehearse them. You all know the troubles which came upon me, and what caused them. But I would be recreant to my wife, my children, my country and my God who rescued me from the depths of that despair into which I had fallen, did I not speak out. It is to Him that I owe my cleanness of spair into which I had failen, did I not speak out. It is to Him that I owe my cleanness of mind and soundness of body tonight."

"Against the drink traffic I am committed now and forever, heart and soul and body, hand and foot in favor of the great principle of problibition. It is a principle in the term in wor prohibition. It is a principle inherent in man. Born in the heart of man and in the love and power of Almighty God, it enters also into the inevitable logic of events and into the legisla-tion of every government. This moral princi-ple is in the constitution of this country, coming under the head of the public morals, and it has been passed upon and settled by the courts time and again. The supreme court has not only said that this principle is consti-tutional, but they have said, too, that the peonevitable logic of events and into the leg ple have a right to enforce it ple have a right to enforce it.

"This principle has come to the front with tremendous force. It is in politics—and it is there to stay until this great question shall be settled in the interest of humanity, good government and God.

"No amount of abuse can deter the advocates of this principle of prohibition from doing their duty as they see it under God.

cates of this principle of prohibition from doing their duty as they see it under God.

"Parties and men come and go—but this principle lives on forever.

"Ministers have been criticized for taking part in the public discussions of prohibition. The prophets of old said that it was the mission of the priest to discern between the clean and the unclean things and tell the recole. sion of the priest to discern between the clean and the unclean things and tell the people bow to choose. If the liquor traffic is not an unclean thing I would like to know why.

"Oh, but some people don't want the preachers to deal with this great principle—as one man in Atlanta said publicly during the last prohibition campaign in this city "that the preachers ought to be lashed back to their pulpit." That man might be able to lash pulpit." That man might be able to lash some of them but he would certainly have a picnic if he should come in my direction. Of course the brewers and whisky men don't like for preachers to take any new her. picnic if he should come in 'my direction. Of course the brewers and whisky men don't like for preachers to take any part, but what decent man cares a fig for the brewers and whisky men? A blind man could see that their abuse of the preachers springs solely from self-interest. It is the galled jade that winces every time.

abuse of the preachers springs solely from self-interest. It is the galled jade that winces every time.

"Thank God I don't have to go to barrooms to get my idea of preaching, and I don't want these old jugwumps to tell me how to do it."

"Oh, but they say we are bringing it into politics. Why they said the preachers ought to kept out of the Atlanta campaign because it was not right for them to go into politics. And now since this movement has started in Georgia they say that prohibition should not be put into politics. The truth is that when these gentry want it to be political they make it political, and when they don't want it political its not political. I put them on notice that they can't play that trick on us any more. They sat down on us and rolled over us with local option. The trouble about local option is that sometimes it ops and sometime it don't op. We are not going to stand it any longer you see. It won't work. Prohibition is a great moral and political question. Thank God we've got a political question at last that's got some morality about it. This movement of prohibition is growing to giant proportions. It sits at the feet of both political parties in this country, and like the ghost of Banquo will not down at their bidding. Prohibition will be political just as long as the whisky traffic is political. "The whisky traffic dominates this country. It controls democratic as well as republican legislation. There is a well defined and tan-just as long as the whisky traffic is political.

"The whisky traffic dominates this country. It controls democratic as well as republican legislation. There is a well defined and tangible connection between both political parties and the whisky traffic. This is what has made the prohibition party possible—a party which a man can vote with with a clean ballot, and go to bed with a clean conscience. It is growing. In 1884, 155,000 prohibition votes were cast by our party, and in 1887 it cast 370,000. This same prohibition party made it possible for the democratic party, in the state of New York, to defeat the republicans in the last state election. That election lahowed that the prohibition vote in New York had grown in a short time from 31,000 to 42,900. The republicans of New York called the prohibition party a democratic annex and charged that the prohibition speakers were hired out of the democratic funds—a base lie—and they knew it when they said it.

Is has also been said that prohibition is the hobby of long-haired men and short-haired women—another lie.

"You sill remember when Cleveland was elected in 1884. You remember what a time you had in Atlanta. The town was turned upside down and the dram shops were turned inside out. The legislature held a sort of jubilee. How was Cleveland elected? Did was cleveland elected? Did was cleveland elected?

democrats elect him? As none of you ill answer, I will.
[Here Mr. Small read from THE ATLANTA

CONSTITUTION.]
This is ty good authority—this editorial in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION which goes in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION which goes in The ATEANTA CONSTITUTION which goes to show that the prohibitionists elected Cleveland by the strong fight which they made against the republican party in New York state. And now the democrats have got all the fat offices. Surely the democratic party owe the prohibitionists a debt of gratitude which they will never be able to pay until they disband and come in and join us.

which they will have they disband and come in and join us.

What is the democratic party going to do anyhow—going to denounce all who act with the prohibition party in Georgia—going to fill the newspapers with lies about them—going to try to bull doze them—going to stamp out the damnable heresy?

"What are you going to do about this third party in Georgia?

party in Georgia?
"If that's your programme I want to say to you democrate that you are a few years too late. That sort of work might have done for a radical carpet-bagger some years ago, but it will have no effect on good men who have got their trunks anchored in Georgia."
"Prohibition comes to Georgia naturally as sunshine. It comes because the people want it—and they want it because they know that it is a blessing.

is a blessing.

"You can abuse until your tongues are tired; you can bulldoze all you want, but Isay to you tonight that we have come, and we have come to stay, and we will meet you at the tank—and to stay, and we will meet you at the tank—and give you some good water.

"Denounce me and my movement, eh? Yes, and before you knew what I had to say. Such are the brilliant processes of logic of the opposition. You needn't headline it Sam Small's Scheme. S.. S.. you know, is good for the blood. It will take a few doses to bring some of the corruption to the surface of the opposition. It is the impudence of imbecility for sensible men representing Fulton county to charge that we are trying to disrupt the democratic party of Georgia with a microscope and tell me how much disruption it will stand. Where is the democratic party? Is your senator, me how much disruption it will stand. Where is the democratic party? Is your senator, Joseph E. Brown, the democratic party? He is quite in accord with anti-sumptuary principles. [Langhter.] He is for the repeal of the internal revenue laws, too. So are the prohibitionists. Then there is Senator Colquitt. He is against the repeal of the internal revenue laws. Still he claims to be a prohibitionist. Now which of these two men, Brown or Colquitt, represent the democrat party of Georgia? If both do, what more disruption does the party need? The gap is big enough now for the third party to walk through without touching Every democratic state convention for years Every democratic state convention for years past have called for the repeal of the internal revenue laws. The legislature of Georgia has 'by resolution demanded their repeal, yet ten members of congress from Georgia sit up there at Washington and misrepresent the people down here by voting to keep the tax on. And Cleveland, fresh from the Buffalo breweries, comes to Washington and says the revenue to must be kent on and says the revenue tax must be kept on. "The democrats in Georgis who are now holwing about Cleveland's message will crawl on their belies to lick his hand when he is re-elected next fall. I know this ain't good medicine, but it will do you good to take it.

"We don't want to disrupt the democratic party. We don't need to disrupt it; but let it stand pat till it is gorged by the breweries and whisky element, and you'll see a very large number of decent men "join out" of the democratic party. It will fall to pieces of its own

"I have been through twenty states, and talked to the people, and I tell you that now the republican party have no hope of electing the next president. The condition of that party the benefits the people with the p ess because the prohibition om 300,000 to 500,000 votes is hopeless because the prohibition party will take from 300,000 to 500,000 votes from its ranks. But if you want to see the democratic party defeated next fall just jump on the pro-hibition party in the south and you will drive all the prohibitionists at the north back into the republican party. Nothing will save Cleve-land, not even free wool and free whisky if the iand, not even free wool and free winsky it in democratic party fight prohibition in the south "The prohibition party walks in Georgia with dynamite in both pockets, and if you kick it on either side there will be trouble in the neighborhood.

"Georgia is for prohibition. You had local option here in Atlanta. The liquor interests sent emissaries here from all over the country and killed local option by debauching and buying the ignorant voters. It was the triumph of the liquor element of the country over the intelligence, morality, Christianity and prosperity of this city.
"We want scientific temperance taught in the neighborhood.

We want scientific temperance taught in the public schools so that our children may know the horrible effects and grow up to vote against this infamous liquor traffic. "The democratic party is in favor of red liquor anywhere and everywhere. It commit you at the north to the damnable traffic. You you at the north to the dammable traffic. You can't favor liquor nationally and oppose it locally. Carlisle is a supporter of the liquor men. Roger Q. Mills has tried to fix up the tariff in the interests of the liquor traffic. The democratic party has been debauched by the whisky traffic. Both the parties are controlled by the whisky element. The difference is the democratic party confesses it and the republican party lies about it.

"These two parties stand between the liquor traffic and the total extinction. After the next election the republican party will be destroyed, the democratic party will be the liquor party, and then the national prohibition party will beat it out.

"Let us stand then for prohibition as a part. We Invite you to join us. The time is oppor-

"Let us stand then for prohibition as a part. We invite you to join us. The time is opportune and jif you don't come in you will get left. "Don't let any man's abuse or nonsense deter you, but stand on these principles."

Mr. Small closed with a fine personation. Letters were read from John L. Harden, Walthourville: J. B. Gambrell, of Mississipping L. A. Williams, of South Carolina, bid. pi; J. A. Williams, of South Cerolina, bidding the third party God-speed. Mr. Small showed a number of letters on the same line, which came from all over the south.

About ten o'clock Rev. Sam Jones walked upon the stage. There was great app He was loudly called for, and made SAM JONES'S REMARKS. "I could not be here earlier, because I have been at the bedside of an ill sister, whom I have not seen for weeks. I knew, though have not seen for weeks. I knew, though, that the procession was moving along all right.

"Brother Small has been out from under my wing for some time. I have not heard the principles of the third party announced, but if Brother Small wants to go with it, why, all right. This is a free country. If you want to be a democrat, be one. I don't, thank God. If you want to be a republican, be one. I don't and never did.

be a democrat, be one. I don't, thank God. If you want to be a republican, be one. I don't and never did.

"This is my platform. I am for everthing that is against whisky, and sin, against everything that's for whisky. I don't belong to the head or tail of the third party But I would not be ashamed to belong to it because they are the decentest crowd in this country. Those who say that Brother Small came here in the interest of the republican party are lying under a mistake.

"I am a Christian mugwump. I vote for who I please and what I please. If you would dry up every still in Georgia I wouldn't care if the devil was president. He couldn't do much harm without red liquor.

"If you don't divide the democratic party pretty soon, the devil will get the whole lump.
"I am for prohibition all the way through—with my heart, soul, body and mind, from the crown of my head to the sole of my feet. I've got no more sense than to go for anything for the benefit of my mother, wife and children, and sobriety. We are getting along nicely in Georgia. The state is nine-tenths dry, if the pond in Atlanta does rise and soak the country with whisky for fifty miles around. "There are twice as many prohibition ists tonday as there were abolitionists ten years before Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation. "I have been through twenty-six states and wherever I have heard prohibition mentioned in public there was applause.

PROFESSOR SCOMP SPEARS.

Professor Scomp said as the hour was late, he would be very brief. He would be very simple to try to speak after the two Sams. He said: "I was one of the hundred and eighty-four cranks who voted for St. John in Georgia in 1884, and I expect to be one of the cranks to vote for Clinton B. Fisk, or whoever may be nominated by the national prohibition party. I am for prohibition first, last and all the time."

"Sam Small has inaugurated tonight," said Sam Jones after last night's meeting, "a move ment that will sweep the state from Dan to Beersheba."

A prominent worker in the third party movement, a gentleman who was on the stage at last night's meeting, said that at the meeting of the prohibition county executive committee yesterday afternoon it was reportable that prominent prohibitionists had mittee yesterday afternoon it was reported that prominent prohibitionists had been out on the streets all day, trying to keep other prohibitionists from the meeting. The third party men have been indignant at these men. One of the party leaders said that when the times come they will make it somewhat uncomfortable for some of the leading prohibitionists who have, they claim, put themselves on record on this matter at different times. Sam Small will address the people of

After a race the negro, Bill Pittman, was caught, but the white boy got away.

Carner's face had been blackened with shoe blacking and he presented a rather comical picture. Sam Small, the rollicking and rum-hating revivalist, is anxious to become governor of Georgia. He has, therefore, decided to take up his resi dence in Atlanta and pose as the political head of the prohibition party. The prohibitionists of Geor-gia have called a state convention for April 25. With assute aggressiveness Small has sent out a call to his prohibition followers to meet on April 24. Thus have the prohibitionists of Georgia split on what is distinctly a Small issue. What the result will be no one can say.

Coming north he entered the service of the New York Times, and later was identified with other newspapers.

ALSTON'S FATE.

He Stabbed His Daughter to the Heart.

One of the Most Frightful Tragedies of the Year-What Grew Out of an Elopement Down in Texas.

WEATHERFORD, Texas, April 17 .- The des tails of the Alston murder case have already been given to the public, but a brief summary may not be out of place. Mr. J. N. Alston, formerly a citizen of Georgia, but for some years past a well-to-do farmer residing near Poolville, in this country, killed his daughter Laura, a few days ago.

Alston opposed his daughter's marriage to young man named Turpin. One night Turpin with a companion came to the house, and overowered Alston and carried off Laura by force. The marriage took place the next day. Alston sent for the bride, and when she reached his house she informed him that she had planned the whole business in order to marry her lover. In his rage Alston drew his knife and stab-ed the girl fourteen times in the breast, killing her instantly. The authorities at once carried him to Weatherford, where he made the following statement before a justice taking of his own life.

Mr. Cleveland, the jailer, had taken every precaution to prevent him from succeeding, taking the blankets out of the cell. But not to be foiled, he tore a slit out of the blankets about six inches wide, and taking it he tied it around his neck and, standing on a bucket, tied this as far up the cell as he could. Then with a piece of towel, and it is supposed with his teeth, tied his hands together clasped. Then he drew his right leg up and dropped it over the other hand then kicked the bucket out from under him, making it impossible for him to assist himself in any way and turning back impossible.

He was found hanging in this position by Jailer Cleveland when he went on his rounds.

Justice Squyres held an inquest over him and rendered a verdict in accordance with

The other inmates of the cells say that they heard no noise, but about eight o'clock in the night they heard a loud thumping like the loud beating of a heart, but otherwise nothing, and that they took no notice of this.

Alston was in a cell alone, and it was impossible for anyone to get to him without the keys to the jail, which were in possession of Mr. Cleveland.

Thus one of the most brutal murders that has ever disgraced the annals of this country.

turned over to the undertaker it was viewed by hundreds of people, and not one spoke the first word in pity for him, or in the commiseration of his bloody deed.

Thus it has been ended. His remains will be buried here, for the reason that the good people of Poolville refuse to allow his remains to be buried in the cemetery at that place.

Thus he is dead, an alien from his own people, and attainted with the crimes of his own hands.

GILMORE IN JACKSONVILLE.

The Great Musician on His Way to Atlanta.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 17.—[Special.]— The fourth and last concert of the great Gilmere closed here tonight to the largest house of the series. The building was crowded to the doors, and there was an overflow of many hundred on the outside. The audience was, as usual, immensely enth the repetition of nearly all the instrum the repetition of nearly all the instrimental numbers. At the close the cannon beloched forth in the air emphatic and joyful indersement of the enterprise, and the exposition management have banked a needed and substantial addition to their treasury. Gilmore also issues from the public triumphant as usual, and, after his concerts at Savannah tomorrow, will enter Adanta with his great troupe, his meguificent local artists, and his cannon and anytis conquering and to conquer. He expects the Atlanta public to be the ereat quer. He expects the Atlanta public to be the great event of his southern tour, and such it will no doub prove. He says he has selected his programmes with the greatest care with a view both to excellen-ey and popularity, and he enticipates great pleasure in freing an au lience of such well known discrim-ination and taste.

The County Courts.

Very little business was done in the county courts yesterday. The city court was not in session and Judge Richard H. Clark's court sat only an hour. Solicitor General Hill gave a verdict to Aaron Birch, who was indicted for assault to murder. Elbert Ware has not been sentenced yet, but probably will be today. Everybody wanted to secure eligible places, and everybody was eager to get the choicest seats in the building.

Boards were exhibited showing the location of all the seats. The diagrams showed precisely the situation of all the chairs.

The earlier applicants secured the seats in the rows immediately surrounding the platform upon which the band is to be situated. The buyers, as a general thing, got tickets for all three nights. Some persons bought as many as a dozen seats, while ers secured as few as two.

Charlie Howard was, as he always is, accommodating and courteous. He tried to please everybody, and it is safe to say that nody came away dissatisfied.

There are plenty good seats to be had yet, and Charlie will be on deck early this morn-This gentle hint is given: Go early and get

The ladies, as some paper states, will stand careful inspection under the opera glass. They are all young and beautiful and unlike many of the prima donnas, look just like their lithographs. Mine Tanner is a lithe and willowy blonde, very fair in complexion, sweet in manner and birdlike in voice, so that she is always an object of interest to both the eye and ear. Signorina Carlotta has very black eyes, but the sweetest of all dispositions responding with pleasure always when her sweet voice and winning countenance win a recall. Mile Mellini is another materna in figure, and is fair to look upon, while her voice is rich and is heard to advantage in the quartette work. Miss Buhlmeyer, the pretty and talented planist, and of a disposition as mild as the others, finishes the quartette of fresh and beautiful ladies which any company would be flattered to dies which any company would be flattered to possess.

Tagliapietra is often termed "Handsome Tag;" but since he parted with his mustache, he is a somewhat different looking man. Charles Tarner is a large, robust, fine looking tenor, as his picture shows. The band members are all artists, and look it. Fine, manly fellows with gentlemanly appearance and de-portment, they are always found at their work striving for excellence in their profession and fame for the band.

A large military band like Gilmore's has a A large military band like Gilmore's has a collection of music which it is something of a trade to take care of and keep in proper shape. Gilmore's library consists of some 6,000 pieces, and such is the system that any piece can be produced within a few seconds. It is all in charge of W. B. Clayton as librarian, and that is his sole occupation with Gilmore's band. He has served Mr. Gilmore in this capacity for long years, and what he does not know about music, arrangements, encore pieces, etc., is not music, arrangements, encore pieces, etc., is not of much service to the best band in the world. At each city visited he receives the pro-gramme and goes into the music trunks after and places the music for each player in the regular order on the rack with the music for probable encores under the regular programme piece. When it is considered that each propiece. When it is considered that each programme consists of thirteen numbers, many of which are encored two and three times, and that each piece of music has sixty different sheets for as many different players, it may be seen that only the most careful system prevents the atmost confusion in the music box. But no one but the librarian touches the music, and he keeps it under lock and key excepting when in we on the stage, and his mistakes are when in use on the stage, and his mistakes are few indeed. It may be mentioned that in re-sponding to demands for encore, Mr. Gilmore does not play the same piece over, but plays something else of the same general style and characteristics.

Sig. Tagliapietra is known as the best barisign lightagera is known as the best oartone in America, and has won the grandest success in opera. His encomiums from the press are about the most flattering ever showered upon a male singer. His voice has great breadth and the slightest nasal quality. The range is remarkable and he sings with great power and dramatic force.

The cool sensation experienced when Gil-The cool sensation experienced when Gilmore's band is playing Liszt's Poem Symphonique, with its whistling, soughing, moaning, wailing and crooning winds, makes one almost shiver. A listener at Elmira, N. Y., once turned up his coat collar during its rendition. It made him think it was chilly.

The editor of the Scranton, Pa., Republican went into ecstasy over the flute playing of Mr. Fred Lax, and wrote as follows: "Lax's flute playing can be likened to nothing but a glinting."

Fred Lax, and wrote as follows: "Lax's flute playing can be likened to nothing but a glinting of musical moonlight on a shimmering lake of harmony, glistening even to phosperescence as it dances on the wavelets. The big horns behind were the retiring storm clouds, rolling into the gulf of the horizon and silvered by the flute beams through their rifts."
"The soloist was Mmc. Tanner. The lady has a good stage presence. Her high notes especially are of phenomenal purity. The largest crowd that has yet attemped any rehearsal was in the opera house yesterday afternoon. The practice began at 4:30 o'clock and did not end until near 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Richards played the piano accompaniments and Mr. Sumner Salter flourished the baton.

Soon after the singing began the conductor discovered that one section of the sopranos was out of gear. He went down and made a little speech, telling the singers how important it was to keep strict time and to sing in tune. He then drilled the sopranos separately until they had showed an appreciation of the music. Then the others were put through in the same way, until an improvement was noticed. The singers increased in number until about four hundred were in their places.

The most difficult chorus, and the one which required the most practice, was "Hail, Bright Abode," from Wagner's Tannhauser. This is one of the grandest choruses ever written, and abounds in difficulties. The singing at first wes uncertain. Before the rehearsal was over, however, the singing was smooth and precise.

Mr. Salter was well pleased with the result, and spoke words of encouragement and praise to the singers.

There will be no rehearsal this afternoon, but tonight there will be a full rehearsal, and it is desired that every member of the chorus shall attend. Mr. Salter says that if all the singers will be in their places promptly at 7:30 o'clock tonight, he is confident that he can get the choruses up to a high standard. If any singers of acknowledged ability wish to join the chorus today, they can do so.

Mr. Michael Mahoney left yesterday for a visit to St. Augustine, Fla. His visit will be a combination of business and pleasure.

Mrs. Eugene Hardeman and Miss Maggie Liwshe, have returned from a visit to Mrs. R. W. Hardeman, at Oxford, Ga.

Miss Paralle Brotherton, who is a pupil at the LaGrange Female college, visited her parents on Forsyth St. a few days since.

Rev. Dr. Barrett, accompanied by his wife, left the city on Monday for a visit to Florida. They will return to the city on Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas Silby, of Charleston, accompanied by her daughters, Miss Annie Lou and Leila, are visiting friends on Capitol avenue.

Drink Malto-it is pleasant. The past week traveling passenger agents, representing various lines in the country, have been working up business in Florida. Among them are William Hughes, of the Savannah, Florida and Western; John H. Griffin, of the Evansville route; W. H. Hasford, Western and Atlantic; J. A. Cohen, Baltimore and New York; J. C. Dame, of the Chesspeake and Ohio; Charles Harman, of the Western and Atlantic, and Clyde Bostick, of the Central.

For convalescents, especially females, and for all patients suffering from enteebled digestion, a mild Tonic stimulant, one that contains just enough alcohol to stimulate the gastric follicles, and is at the same time nutritious in itself, would seem a most desirable remedy for routine use in every physician's practice, provided such a remedy is palatable enough to insure its continued use, and cheap enough to make it available for all classes of patients. Just such a preparation it is claimed is the Concentrated Liquid Extract of Malt and Hops, which is now offered to the profession under the name of The "Best" Tonic, which has recently appeared on sale in most of our drug stores.

SOL GOLDBERG RELEASED.

He Talks About His Connection With the Blind Man Fleming and His Troubles.

At half past two o'clock yesterday afternoon sol Goldberg was released from Fulton county jail on bail.

"I am a young man," he said in talking about his troubles, "with nothing in the world but my character, which has, I am thankful to say, been unsullied heretofore. I realize that I have got myself into a bad place, but my conscience is clear. I certainly had no criminal intent in doing as I did. What I have done has been purely through friendship for this blind man Fleming, whom I have known for four years. I was a fool to help him as it turned out. You see, he told me that he had given the money to his wife to keep for him. He said it was his and that if he got it he could get free. I did not know that he was as big a rascal as he is—no way near it.

"It is perfectly evident" continued young Goldberg, "that I did not want to steal the money. Why that satchel contained bonds and money, two very valuable watches, one of them worth I suppose one thousand dollars; two diamond studs, fifty dollars in gold and other gold pieces, a heavy gold chain and other valuables. The way the money was taken argues against any intention on my part to commit crime. I was simply acting as a friend of Fleming and thought it was all right, believing as I did that he had a right to authorize me to take the money. His excuse for not letting his wife know that he wanted it was that she might think him guilty of the crime of which he was charged.

"Neither he nor his wife want to prosecute me, but I insisted on a trial to vindicate myself. I want to show that the money was taken with no intention of robbery or anything of that sort."

en with no intention of robbery or anything of that sort."

Sol Goldberg has lived in Atlanta between two and three years and it is but fair to him to add that this is the first time his name has appeared in connection with contributed in the source.

Camadian Catarrh Cure Co.:

Gentlemen—My wife was a great sufferer with Catarrh for over two years. She has been a little troubled ever since she was a child with the disease. About two years ago we were in Mississippi, and while there she was taken down with catarrhal fever; we had three of the best physicians we could get. They broke the fever and left her the worst case of catarrh of the head I ever saw. Her nose ran profusely, and for a year I despated of her ever getting well. I died several doctors and they could not cure her, and used every catarrh remedy I could hear of. I spent over $50 the past year for remedies, and all to no effect. At last it became so oftensive that you could hardly remain where she was. I offered $1,000 to any doctor who would cure her and that would have left us homeless), but I would bot have cared for that I she could only be cured. We saw an advertisement in the Atlanta Constitution of "Canadian Catarrh Cure." and thought we would try it, and went to your office, when you gave my wife a small sample bottle of your remedy, and told us to come and get a large bottle when that was out. I bought the large bottle, and before she had used all of the bottle she was entirely well, and her health fully restored, and now does more work than any woman I know. She used the medicino over six months ago, and there has not been the sightest return or the disease. I hope everybody that has catarrh may find you and be cured. I am a traveling man and lave told a great many of your wonderful cure. Yours truly,

NEW YORK STOCKS. Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock

NEW YORK, April 17.—The stock market was nore active and stronger today and everything on the list is higher this evening, with the exception and West Point stocks, which reacted slightly. In consequence of unfavorable reports from Berlin disturbances on European bourses were reflected in this market by London selling, but the reflected in this market by London selling, but the increased demand for domestic account neutralized the effect of foreign operations, and an immediate improvement in prices took place in early dealings. There were heavy coverings of shorts and more confident buying for long account. Coal stocks early became features of the market, Jersey Central leading. Grangers were stronger than usual, but Richmond and West Point stocks were weak, though still remaining in the lead in the market. The passage of the bond bill had a marked in ket. The passage of the bond bill had a marked in-fluence later in the day, when the upward move-ment became more general, and on the report that the secretary intended buying $100,000,000 without the secretary intended uping stood, to whether further authority from congress government securities advanced sharply, with a marked increase in the amount of business, and in the last hour the best prices of the day were reached on larger sales. NEW YORK, April 17-Hubbard, Price & Co., in their circular today, say: The decline in Liverpool is reflected here, and our market for options opened six points off. Trading remained limited, but with six points off. Trading remained limited, but with no special desire to sell the market down. Prices kept steady, and under some demand to cover short engagements recovered two points, closing oulet bales, compared with 2,424 bales for the same time last year, but, as it is asserted that a larger movement is at the expense of the interior towns, it had no depressing influence on values.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 17—[Special.]—When trading began on 'change this morning the interest in wheat exceeded that of previous days since the revival of speculation on the floor. So strong was the built feeling that the opening was just to higher than the closing last night, and during the first heur the range of prices covered to for all the leading futures. Wheat sold today 7c higher than it did seven days ago. The range was $1\text{\text{\text{max}}\text{\tex Jump at one time nearly 2c over the outside price on Monday. A little later a sharp reaction came which wiped out part of the advance. The close at 1 p. m. for May was at 82c, or 1/ce better than the close last night. The close for the day was 813/ce. Realizing just before the close was heavy and general. Conspicuous on the bull side to lay was a leeding operator who was backed by country and local bulls. Another operator closed out a line of 1,000,000 bushels of May at 82c. While other markets were not so

Outs showed a downward tendeher at the opening but rallied and advanced %c over last night.
Receipts of hogs largely exceeded estimates and prices decline 15@20c. This created a weak and unsettled market for the product. Trading, however, was not large, there being too nuch excitement in grain for operators to give much attention to prograin for operators to give much attention to previsions. One operator sold all the pork buyers wanted, but the largest purchaser on the market only took 75,000 barrels. May opened at $14.25, declined to $14.05, reacted and closed at 1 o'clock at $14.174—a decjine of 10e from yesterday. Lard was slow and 5c lower. Short ribs declined 11/615c.

The following was the range in the leading futures in Chicago today:

strong as here, everything at home and abroad had an upward tendency, except for May. The uniform advance for the day in wheat futures was 1c. There was not the same excitement in corn as in wheat, but at any other time the same action would be remarkable. May opened at 55%c, or %c over last night, sold down $0.55% 55%c and then up to 57c, from which realizing seles caused a decline to 55% $65% at the close. June also opened %c higher at 55%c, sold down to 55%c, up to 55%c and closed

Whatever, else may be said of our hero this evening, let me add in closing my rambling reminiscences, that in all my years of association with him, I have never found him faithless to a friend or unresponsive to a demand of humanity. Aumanity.

He is always the same unpretentious, unassuming man, year in and year out, and always loveable. The poetry of his nature has given him a softness of manner as gentle as a woman's, and he is idolized by his friends. Generous ever, warm-hearted at all times, it is no wonder he has a tender spot in the hearts of all who know him.

Miss Starke read a short biographical sketch of Mr. Harris, which was excellent in all respects. She then read several of his earlier poems, which were pronounced gems by everybody. Miss Starke was complimented upon her performance.

The circle adjourned to meet again two weeks hence, when Dr. Chaney will read an essay on the literary merits of Mr. Harris's works. For the circle to devote two evenings to one author is an honor which he will readily appreciate. Mr. Harris is the only one who has been thus signally honored.

Somehow, and without being able to explain why, Mr. Joel Chandler Harris has passed almost out of my memory. I know him as Mr. Harris by sight, but he ever lives within my heart as 'Uncle Remus.' I presume this is a kind of personal liberty, however, and you who have not enjoyed the years of close, daily contact the best when the Laws must prefer to have me answer questions is startling. He has never yet answered a visitor in anything but monosyllable, and men and women alike leave him in dispair, convinced that he is both the silentest and politest man in the world. No visitor ever found him discourteous, and no visitor ever got anything out of him but monosyllables and an autograph. About the latter he is very accommodating.

The serious side of the character of Mr. Harris could not be better portrayed than in ful plodder in verse to proceed in a career that promised to be a proud one. Some months ago, a noted American humorist who had heard of the early poetic effusions of Mr. Harris, resolved to visit Eatonton and fish them out from among the files lof the papers there. His idea was to find his younger-day verses, and spring them and him in some popular journal of today as a great joke. But even the humorist, after finding the poems he sought, turned to a companion with tears in his eyes and said: "This poetry is too sweet to make fun over."

The Members of the League Will Send Delegates to the New York Meeting.

There was a good attendance of young democrats at the meeting of the Y. M. D. L. at room 29, Gate City bank building, last night.

The meeting was called to discuss a plan proposed by the Young Men's Democratic clubs of New York, of Brooklyn, of Massachusetts, of Milwaukee and other places to form a national league among the democratic clubs already in existence, and to organize others in every portion of the union, for the purpose of fighting a bold and aggressive campaign upon the platform to be adopted by the coming democratic convention in St. Louis.

After considerable discussion it was decided to send delegates to the coming conference of these clubs to met in New York at the Hoffman house on Saturday, April 21, 1888. Mr. Frank Arnold, Mr. Burton Smith and Mr. W. T. Turnhill, president of the league were elected delegates: At least one and probably all of these gentlemen will attend the convention. The Literary Circle and Joel Chandler Harris. The Literary circle met last night at 7:30 o'clock in the ladies' parlor of the Young Men's Library association.

It had been announced that Joel Chandler Harris would be the subject of discussion, and a number of the bright literary people of the city were present.

To the disappointment of all, Dr. Chaney, who was to read an original paper on Joel Chandler Harris, was absent. It was resolved that the circle would postpone the discussion of the author till the next meeting and would wait till then to hear Dr. Chaney's paper. wait till then to hear Dr. Chaney's paper.

Mr. Charles T. Logan read an excellent sketch of Mr. Harris, referring chiefly to his home life and idiosyncracies. His remarks were heartily enjoyed by all. Below is a synopsis of what Mr. Logan said:

When allusion is made to "my uncle" in the play, the pit laughs and the heedless smile. The equivocal interpretation of this term needs revision; for it is in no sense definitive of a consanguinous relationship. For my part, this evening, I shall neither attempt the revision nor speak of "uncles" in general. While it is true that nearly all of us have uncles, it goes without saying that we all have certainly our own "Uncle Remus." It is this latter uncle that we have come to consider tonight. Romance has long since discovered the rich uncle as part of the machinery of fiction, but nothing can ever discard the "Uncle Remus" of reality. But the comparison can, with some degree of interest, be carried a little further; for our "Uncle Remus," like the average every-day uncle, should be in every family. He is no trouble, no expense, and we all love him.

At this convention there will be a full and free discussion of the best methods to be adopted by the democratic party in order to win the votes of the thousands of young men all over the country, who are tired of the thread bare doctrines of the republican party, and who are fready to go over to the party offering them live, vigorious and at the same time conservative issues.

McNish, Johnson & Slavin's Refined Min strels. Next Friday and Saturday at night, and matince, these great creators of refined fun will appear at the opera house, presenting an entirely new rep-ertoire of songs, jokes, dances, afterpiece, music and specialties. The Brooklyn Standard of last November, thus notices their performance:

evening, where they appeared for the second time this scason. This company is one of the Lest of its kind on the coad, and contains more music and more novelties than the great majority of similar organizations. The entertainment opens with their novereception scene, in which various performers are received on the lawn by the middlemen, who then fimprovises a concert. Owing to a severe cold, McNish was compelled to fo ego the pleasure of singing last night, but he promised the next time he crossed the big bridge not to open his mouth in wonder, even if the rapid growth of the town did excite his admiration. The musical portion concluded with a laughable farce, entitled "Dr.
Freckles and Mr. Snide."
Following this came the wonderful horizontal bar performers, LaRux and Wilton, who eleverly mix agility with fun; Robert Slavin, in his side-splitting solitoquies and songs; Frank E. McNish, in his "silence and Fun," that is often initated but never his best; the Selbini tamily in their really wonderful cats on the bicycle and unicyc e; Valjean, the Egyptian juggler; and finally, a burlesque of "Ermine," that is good as burlesques go. Altogether the entertainment is one that gives nearly three bours of solid laugh, and that's something worth enjoying.

personal liberty, however, and you who have not enjoyed the years of close, daily contact with him that I have, must prefer to have me call him plain Mr. Harris. Well, 'plain Mr. Harris' he shall be then, for never did soubriquet more apily fit a man than that my Uncle Remus should be dubbed 'plain Mr. Harris.' Of all plain men, Mr. Harris is the plainest. From his boot-tips to the cardinal crown of his head, he is plain. He cannot be anything clse, and this seems to be his sole aim, purpose and ambition in life. If he shake hands with you, its a plain shake; if he greet you, it is a plain, 'good morning,' without embellishment, and if he writes, it is always plain, floveable, sweet, pure English. But his plainness by no means makes him commonplace. Indeed, I think this distinguishing characteristic rather elevates him above the plane of humanity, since the world is so prone to ostentation and show. Perhaps Mr. Harris's plainness shows itself in nothing more forcibly than in his dress. I think the records will bear me out in the assertion that he has never yet had a new suit of ciothing. He is never untidy, but no one has Safe, permanent and complete are the cures of bilious and intermittent diseases, made by Prickly Ash Bitters. sertion that he has never yet had a new suit of ciothing. He is never untidy, but no one has ever heard of the proverbial spring suit on the back of Mr. Harris. How he manages to get his clothes made old, no one knows, but this fact, while it is noticeable, never gives his friends any concern. They look upon it as more of a Constitution office joke than anything else. His trousers always bag at the knees, and if he didn't have at least one button off his coat he would not be happy. In justice to his head gear, let me say that he always wears the nobbiest derby hat and red hair, and carries a rustic hickory cane. This hickory cane is a part of the anatomy of Mr. Harris It was cut from the virgin forest near his West End home, and he was never know to be without it. He is not lame, but the hickory cane is as necessary to his make-up as the red cravat that ever adorns his shirt front to keep up a kind of harmonious blending with his stubby mustache and hair. In his general appearance, therefore, it may be accepted that if he be not "Unique, he is, at least, old fashioned. all these things as refreshing as a bright May morning, because of its rarity—not that May mornings are rare—but I mean his refreshing quaintness. And yet the word quaint does not exactly express my meaning. Let us say that he is odd. Without doubt, Mr. Harris is the oddest man I ever knew—odd in every and a thousand ways. Be it known that many hundreds of people come to Atlanta every year to see him, but never a one of them has been able to get anything out of him. I have laughed myself into convulsions, almost, when one of these literary parties made up of curiosity seekers would take the elevator at The Constitution office, asking for a landing on the editorial floor. The man's ability to not answer questions is startling. The sale of the clover and grass farms and lovely groves, part of "Ormewood," today at 3:30 p. m., is attracting a great deal of attention, and a great many will ride and drive out there. The bidding promises to be very lively, as such highly improved property is rarely offered, and dozens of persons are arrancing to secure a little farm home or a clover field for their horses and cows. Of course, every-body cannot get a tract, as there are only six to be sold, but the competition in bidding on these will be keen. Sam'l W. Goode & Co. have arranged conveyances free from their office at 2:30 to 3 p. m. today, and many will go out in private conveyances.

The serious side of the character of Mr. Harris could not be better portrayed than in the taste he has for certain classes of reading. He is a close student, and delights in the life of St. Paul and good old Sir Thomas Brown. These are among his prime favorites. He has made a special study of the best works of the Elizabethian era, and is one of the finest Shakspearean scholars in America. His views are never circumscribed by any narrowness, a fact given special significance by his admiration, almost equally divided between them, of Abraham Lincoln and Stonewall Jackson.

While we are all more or less familiar with the prose writings of Mr. Harris, he is seen at his best in some of his poetic ventures. He is, indeed, a genuine poet, and his mind abounds in poetic fameies. In the first flush of youth he gave these exquisite gems of his poetic fancy to the public through the columns of the Eatonton Press, and met with enough encouragement to have nerved many another youthful plodder in verse to proceed in a career that promised to be a proud one. Some months ago, a noted American humorist who had The C., I., St. L. & C. Railway carries all classes of passengers on fastest express trains. It makes no difference whether their tickets are first class, second class or emigrant. No extra for fast trains.

A Novelty for the Ladies. We mean a drive out to "Ormewood" at 3:50 p. m. today to witness the crowds and bidding at Sam'l W. Goode & Co.'s auction sale of the lovely clover fields and shaded tracts, thence back to the city by McPherson monument, or directly through Ormewood and Grant Park. This makes a very pleasant trip. Young gentlemen, try it. Sam'l W. Goode & Co. said: "This poetry is too sweet to make fun over."

I feel sure that Mr. Harris is the coming man of letters in the south. He receives requests for his autograph from every point in America and from every English-speaking country on the globe, while scores of the most eminent men of letters in England and America seek correspondence with him. His writings have been translated into many languages, and anything from his pen finds ready sale with the best publishers in this country and in England.

15 Acres of the Wilson Orchard, Near West End, Will be Subdivided and Sold at Auction, April 30, 3.30 p. m.

We will sell at auction on the premises, early in May, 15 acres of the Wilson orchard.

This is the west side of said orchard, and has a front of about 2,000 feet, and 300 feet deep. It is near the dummy line, and admirably situated for residences. ront of about 2,000 feet, and 300 feet deep. It is near the dummy line, and admirably situated for residences.

I will cut it up into lots 100x300 feet, with a street on either end of the lot, so that you can have your house to front either east or west, as you may prefer. This is high, nice residence property, where you can enjoy fresh country air, and at the same time be in easy and convenient distance of the city—fare on the dummy line only 5 cents.

This property is immediately north of Westwood park, recently purchased by a wealthy northern syndicate, which no doubt will be highly developed, enhancing all adjacent property.

Go out and look at the property, select your residence lot and come and see me.

Property in this direction is rapidly developing, and will no doubt continue to do so.

One party bought six acres near this property last year for $2,000, and was offered $1,000 for it in two week's afterward, but refused it and built on it. Another party bought a little further out a year before, and refused last year two and a half times what he gave, without doing anything to his property.

"Now," announced the chairman, "when all that are not delegates to this convention have retired, then I will call the meeting to order—not before."

This was in as a vagne a form as an announcement could be put, but the Wimbush men saw a method in it.

"Who's goin' to say which is them that is delegates, and which is them that is not delegates?" asked one of them.

"I suppose I'll have to do that," replied the chairman, thoughtfully, and without paying any attention to the excitement stirred up by his remark, he drew a list from his pocket and coolly announced that he would read the list of delegates.

Wimbush interrupted, but the chairman wouldn't recognize him, and after considerable delay the chairman read his list. Both Fulton and Henry counties, the only ones in which there had been a contest, were credited with Rucker delegations.

"Now" said the chairman as he finished.

reading, "all whose names are not on that its must retire."

After considerable squabbling the McHenry and Wmibush crowd concluded to obey the order as they had a clear majority even after those eight votes were given to Rucker.

By half-past twelve the hall was clear; and the chalfman announced that it was in order to proceed with the temporary organization.

Taylor Slaughter was made chairman and J. A. Sykes secretary. The new chairman stated that he would listen to nothing but business, and asked for quiet and order.

A motion was made and carried to appoint a committee of five on credentials. The chairman drew from his pocket a scrap of paper and man drew from his pocket as earap of paper and read the names: O. C. Gill, of Newton; T. A. Murray, of Campbell; G. W. Horton, of DeKalb; Isaac Dorsey, of Fayette; Hudson Henry, of Clayton.

"How long has that been cut and dried," velled Thompson. yelled Thompson.
"How come you had their names fixed up?"

asked another.

The chairman took the matter calmly, just as if he had expected all that, and in the midst of the confusion the committee retired at a few minutes after one o'clock. They staid out until 3:15. Nobody had had dinner, but all remained. The hall is a long, narrow coffin shared room with an appropriate electry of shaped room, with an appropriate plenty of cobweb frescoing. There were seats for possi-bly two dozen people, and the others were obliged to stand.

At each of the numerous transoms were a half dozen or more faces, and at the door was an luge delegate named Smith, who was acting as doorkeeper. Nobody seemed to care how long the committee staid out. The delegates ate peanuts and smoked eigarettes, and all was quiet and peace. It was the calm before the storm.

The committee came in at 3:15 and made their report.

their report.

Fultou county was given to Wimbush, and a flowl went up from the Rucker ranks. It was no good. Again the committee retired to consider the Henry county contest. In about twenty minutes they came back. Henry county in turn was given to Wimbush, and another Rucker how! went up. It was a prolonged how!, and a prominent Rucker darky voiced the sentiment of his crowd when he said: "If they can't elect Rucker, they shan't clect Wimbush." Burnett, of the Defiance, climbed up on the table in front of the president and Windush." Burnett, of the Defiance, climbed up on the table in front of the president and made a speech, while the Rucker men were trying to hold him up and the Wimbush men were trying to pull him off the table. The doorkeeper is a schemer. The idea was to get everybody out except the Wimbush delegates, and he took them one at a time. If the darky was a big, muscular fellow, the doorkeeper would pat him affectionately on the back, and argue and smile until the big man would leave of his own accord. The little man he would grab by the arm or collar and trot him out unceremoniously. One by one the Rucker men were put outside, the confusion gradually subsided, the transoms were crowded closer than sided, the transoms were crowded closer than ever with curious darkies, and the big doorkeeper turned his attention to politics proper.

The next move was to elect a permanent chairman, and as a reward for his services the big doorkeeper was elected to that position. A. J. Sparks was made permanent secretary. They had hardly been installed before the back door was shoved open and a lot of Rucker men came in.

back door was shoved open and a lot of Rucker men came in.

"Hol' the door," yelled the chairman, as the two factions met. A wild struggle ensued, and in a few minutes the intruders were put out and the door secured. As soon as order was restored, C. C. Wimbush and Jackson McHenry were nominated as delegates to the national convention. Then the nominations were closed, and the two were elected unanimously, all the Rucker men having been carefully weeded out beforehand. J. M. Smith and Taylor Slaughter were then elected as alternates.

A district executive committee, consisting of two from each county and fifteen from the district at large, were chosen, and of this committee C. C. Wimbush was made chairman, and S. W. Easley, Jr., secretary.

The following resolution was read and carried manipuspels:

There was considerable enthusiasm, and quite a number of prominent colored men favored a vigorous movement upon the part of the colored people. In the midst of general good feeling, Burnett, the colored editor, said he wanted the chairs—that he had furnished them and had to have them, and the convention adjourned in self-defense.

At twelve o'clock yesterday the republicans met. By the very nature of things there are two sides to a republican convention. The followers of McHenry and Wimbrush formed one side, while the friends of Rucker and Thompson formed the other side of the convention yesterday, as in the preliminary contests.

It became pretty generally known before the held in Calhoun's Hall, 3½ Decatur street, and when Chairman Rucker knocked on the table with his stick at twelve o'clock, both sides to
